“

The daughter of drug addicts, Mia Dunlap, launched her motivational speaking company to share her narrative of surviving trauma that included abandonment, homelessness, seeing parental domestic violence and substance abuse, yet becoming a first generation high school and college graduate from Spelman in Atlanta, and later becoming a teacher, school leader, and life coach.

“

Mia began writing when she was 9 years old. Since then, Mia has published over 10 articles in local newspapers in Chicago and online blogs. In addition, Dunlap's writing is published in the book, "Until It's Time."

“

A coaches job is to help their clients push passed their limits to achieve their highest potential. Many of today's most successful athletes, business leaders, professionals, and CEOs use coaches to take their lives, careers, or businesses to the next level.

Mia is an accredited coach and is certified through World Coach International.

“

Dunlap has partnered with Achievement First Charter Schools and Ascend Learning Charter schools has:

- A decade of implementing research-based student and adult culture practices in K-12 high performing charter schools in NYC.
- Mastery in assessing school culture and climate needs and creating a responsive, culturally relevant implementation plan.
- Expertise in professional development for teachers and leaders in building a thriving school and adult culture
